PAUL TERRY-TOONS

"SCOTCH HIGHBALL"

By Frank Moser and Paul Terry

Produced by Audio-Cinema, Inc.

No Kentucky Derby was ever as exciting as this epic of the track. The funny gags are more stimulating and exhilarating than the illegal beverage which titles this Terry-Toon. If it's hilarious action that's wanted, this is it.

This is no ordinary horse race, but is attended by all manner of species, who gain their entree by hook or by crook. One ticket admits one female, and all the little ones her voluminous skirt will protect. Dachshunds fight their way ingeniously into the mobbed arena, where the impatient crowds wait while the contending horses go through last-minute setting-up exercises to get into form. Reducing belts, punching bags, and vigorous massaging are gone in for in a big way.

The bell rings, the jockeys are all a-flutter, and proudly parade their steeds just before they're off. One jockey, believing in the superiority of science, rides a hobby horse, and all but wins the race. The winner is an even wiser jockey who has attached springs to his horse's hoofs, and these work so cleverly, his victory is a cinch.

Amid the wild cheering of the crowd, the horse is decorated with a beautiful garland of flowers, and to Sandy, the jockey, the promoter offers anything he has, looking significantly at his daughter Nellie. Very graciously Sandy thanks the kind man, and tells him if it's all the same to him, he'll take the horse.

This is a real nifty that will be a howl in Squeedunk as well as Saratoga.
